Mest Effective Speech to His Of

FOUTH BOSTON, October 1, 1885. In my last letter I promised to finish meeting at the court-house by giving you a synopsis of Colonel Cabell's speech. The speaker was introduced by Mr. N. T. Green in a few earnest and feeling remarks.

Colonel Cabell, after paying a high compliment to the true and tried Dem-crats of old Halifax, said:

With every succeeding election we are accustomed to think and say it is the most important of any that has preceded it. We always cry "wolf, ceded it. We always cry "wolf, wolf," but, believe me, never could this be said with more truth than now, and anything to you, I say to you that this anything to you, I say to you that this is the most important contest we have ever had before us. And what is the contest? Mahone! Nothing but Mahone. Can anything be worse than that? If in a moment of great misfortune to the State John S. Wise be elected its Governor, would not Mahone virtually be Governor and not wise. Did not the caucus control the Did not the caucus control the islature and Mahone the caucus? His speech was frequently interrupte Let me tell you, and let it be sacred and burned into your consciences, that if Wise is elected Governor and Mahone is sent back to the United States Senate, all that devilish malignity, that miserable spite, that contemptible meanness bound up in the little body called Billy Mahone would scorch and blacken and burn and humiliate the people of Virginia opposed to him beyond recognition and recovery! Why, he hates the class of Virginians who war against him and his methods—he hates them as the devil hates holy water; and the sweetest telegrams that could be sent him would be those which told him that Virginia had forgotten her principles, had broken away from her moorings, and had placed his hench-

The Republicans want no settlement of the debt. They don't ey only can control, and to merefore they strive with all their ight to keep this rotten bone of contention ever between the jaws of the people by getting their courts to render decisions adverse to the interests of the State, and in the teeth of her legislative enactments.

The Republican platform was han-McCallum, of the Scottish Timber and the same time in Colonel Cabell's most humorous vein. It claims that General Mahone and his affiliators reduced the tax on tobacco. Well, I have heard of the impertinence of a town cow and the impertinence of an army mule, but never anything to equal this piece of monumental cheek. The history of the reduction of the tobacco tax is well East Tennessee and Virginia railroad, and therefore accessible to all points. The leading spirits in the new enterprise are responsible business-men, and this new section is on the glory of the United States Senate, thinking of the mighty intellects and grand men who have adorned that body, especially from Virginia, methinks I hear the piping voice of William Mahone caying "I crawled, I crawled!"

The speaker then turned his attention to the Republican candidates. John S. Wise had been a fire-cating contraint. Democrat. and 6 per cent. John S. Wise had been a fire-cating accessionist, Democrat, and 6 per cent. Readjuster—nothing long, and not of much value in any position. He was a man sent from Virginia to represent her rights, her liberties, and the honor of her people in the Congress of the United States. It was supposed that if trouble came upon his State he would defend her as a child would lead his old mother; but Wise stood by John Sherman, piling sto his willing ears all the vilifiation and abuse he could think of.

GRAND DEMOCRATIC RALLY.

THE EASTERN SHORE.

There he was, a man pretending to represent this grand old Commonwealth, and instead of coming as a child to protect the fair name of his mother, he heaped upon her disgrace and degration! (Correspondence of the Rietmond Dispatch.)
ONANCOCK, September 29, 1885.
The Democrats of the Eastern Shore had another field-day yesterday at Accomack Courthouse, where Hon. James N. Dunlop, the cloquent young orator of Richmond, delivered a grand speech for the Democracy. The court being in session, Mr. Dunlop spoke in the open air from a large platform in the southern end of the spacious court green—the same from which General Fitzhugh Lee spoke just one month cutrageous acts I might retire to a corner and be silent, but never, so help me God, could I ever strike them! My country, may she always be right, but right or wrong, my country! And when I saw and heard him deflower Virginia's name and speak as he did of her noble people, stabbing the spear into her side, my heart sank within me. It was a shameful and disgraceful sight—a sight to make angels weep. Is he a fit man hugh Lee spoke just one month ago. The crowd, though not so large as when General Lee spoke to make angels weep. Is he a fit man for Governor of this proud old State? here, was still a good one for Sep-tember court, when our people are busily engaged in saving their crops. While successfully refuting all of Mahone's charges and slanders against the Democratic party, Mr. Dunlop's Colonel Cabell closed by paying a glowing and most eloquent tribute to General Lee, Mr. Massey, and Mr. Ayers, calling upon the people of Hali-fax to stand bravely and steadfastly by the colors they had so long borne and so often carried to glorious victory. speech was vigorously aggressive. He vividly portrayed the carnival of misrule and revenge that characterized Mahone's short ascendency in this State, and painted in strong colors the oppression to which the south-ern people were subjected during the dark days of reconstruction and Republican domination. He showed that the Republican party was the enemy of popular liberty and good government. The Republicans had dispersed southern Legislatures, blotted out State lines, and overturned State governments.

Mr. Dunlop's denunciation of the

The hard times were shown to be largely-increased number of young tering of monopolies, and the oppression of the laboring, and especially the agricultural classes. The Democrats have had no opportunity to pass laws since Cleveland was elected. As before reported, new markets for tobacco are opening up all over this State and in North Carolina and Tennessee. This year there will be an effort made on the part of most of these new sections, as well as old ones, to cure bright tobacco by flues. Some have met already with marked success—among these Big Creek, East Tennessee, under the auspices of Mr. C. K. McCallum, of the Scottish Timber and Land Company. A new warehouse has managing the Government as best they

Mr. Dunlop closed with an eloquent appeal to the people to elect Lee, Massey, and Ayers, and to hurl Mahone from the Senate, where he has betrayed Virginia into the hands of her tradition al enemies.

This does not pretend to be a synopsis or even an outline of the magnifi cent speech with which Mr. Dunlop de-lighted his large and appreciative audi-ence for one hour and a half. Rarely cance for one hour and a half. Rarely have our people heard so chaste and eloquent a speech, or one that struck heavier blows against the foes of Virginia. It is needless to say that Mr. Dunlop created a fine impression, and that the Democrats of the Eastern Shore will always be glad to see and hear him to see the wishes of tenants. will always be glad to see and hear him.

After Mr. Dunlop had concluded calls were made for other gentlemen, several of whom responded briefly. among them Mr. T. T. Wescott, who has been renominated for the House.

Judge Garrison has mapped out a programme for the local canvassers. Work will begin this week and continue till the election is over.
